GARNETT, formerly a clerk in the Second Auditor's Office, and for several years clerk of the House Committee on Naval Affairs, and now a leading lawyer in New Hampshire, has recently had a successful operation performed for the removal of a gall received in the battles around Petersburg, Va. The gall, after remaining seventeen years in his thigh without any great inconvenience, last winter became troublesome, and for several weeks it was feared he would not recover. The cut to remove the gall was over three inches deep, and was performed by Dr. Small, of Portland, and the surgeon who originally probed for the gall and dressed the wound on the battle-field.

Holland attacked Fisher with a knife and then knocked him down with a brick, which made a fearful and dangerous contusion on the back of his head, severing the "posterior auricular artery," which bled profusely. Both men were arrested and taken to the First Precinct police station. Dr. H. Jones was called in and succeeded in stopping the hemorrhage by sewing up the wound and applying the usual remedies. He says that it was a very dangerous lesion, and that Lieut. Gessford deserves much credit for the discretionary power he used in allowing the man to be taken home to be treated, as he believed that the man would have died had he been held at the station-house.

BETSEY AND I ARE OUT.

Disagreeable Termination of an Old Partnership.

Mr. George E. Noyes to-day filed a bill in equity against Edwin N. Gray, asking for a dissolution of the partnership existing between Gray & Noyes, and for an injunction, receiver and account. The bill sets forth that in the year 1863 the plaintiff and defendant formed a co-partnership under the firm name of Gray & Noyes, for the purpose of carrying on the business of iron founders.

Prior to the formation of the partnership, the plaintiff had been engaged in the manufacture of machinery and was in possession of certain property, valued at $600, which he contributed to the firm of Gray & Noyes, while the defendant, but in only a few days, during the past eighteen years they have done work, the aggregate cost of which is $1,500,000.

The real estate of the firm consists of lots 19, 20, 21 and 22 in reservation "C," lots 1, 2, 3 and 20 in the same reservation, 40, 41, 42 and 43, square 42, and lot 14, square west of square 623, all of which is encumbered.

There never has been any settlement of accounts between the parties, but the books and bills of the defendant have been drawn from the business $5,919.57 more than the plaintiff and that the firm is indebted to the plaintiff for $3,279.13, money loaned on January 1, 1880.

There is considerable work on hand, but how much is not known. The plaintiff avers that while he has faithfully performed his part in the partnership he has had much occasion during the past four years to be dissatisfied with the conduct of the defendant as respects the business.

The defendant is said to be naturally inclined to be overbearing, and has at times been under the influence of intoxicating liquors. Within the past year, the plaintiff being satisfied that it was impracticable to continue the partnership, he has endeavored to bring about a mutual dissolution of the firm and an amicable adjustment of the accounts, which he declined.

The unfriendly disposition of the defendant toward the plaintiff, the latter claims, has been growing more intense, and on Saturday last, in the course of a conversation between them, the defendant gave expression to his intention of continuing the partnership, the relation having got to such an unfriendly state it is thought impossible to longer carry on the business together.

Washington Light Infantry Corps. The Washington Light Infantry Corps, as per orders from Col. Wm. G. Moore, their commanding officer, assembled last night at their armory in fatigue uniform for a dress parade.

When the command had assembled, Col. Moore, in the simplest vein, presented to the Corps rifle team the gold badges won from the rifle team of the National Rifles. The badges are of solid gold, the body being a six-pointed star, surrounded by a handsome scroll.

In the center is a handsome enameled target of various colors, the words "The Washington Light Infantry Corps" are inscribed with the following inscription: "Won by the W. L. I. C. from the National Rifles—score, 107-189, Oct. 26, 1881."

The members of the successful team are Lieutenants Burton R. Reed, Matthew Goddard, and John S. Miller; Sergeant Wm. H. Harrison; Corporals George Woodbridge and C. E. Fraser; Privates Wm. L. Cash, Howard Beal and W. S. Cash.

After the presentation of the Corps (132 men, rank and file), marched to the east front of the Capitol, where they had a dress drill, which was witnessed by at least 200 ladies and double that number of gentlemen.

So perfect was the drill, that the bystanders awarded them round after round of applause, accompanied by a hearty three cheers for their rifle team. When the corps returned to their armory, Col. Moore read a letter from Col. D. E. Austin, commanding the Brooklyn Thirtieth Regiment, inviting the corps to visit their city, promising the boys a happy time. In his letter he says the Thirtieth wants them to come, and to come quick; and they will not take so for an answer.

He offers the use of the armory of the Thirtieth Regiment for quarters and promises to make their trip a happy one.

Col. E. Fraser stepped to the front, and offered the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the corps shall present annually marksmen's bars to the members of the corps making 99 per cent. or better, and the corps shall present annually marksmen's bars to the members of the corps making 80 per cent. or better, and the persons making said 80 per cent. shall be known as marksmen.

Lieut. Rose gave notice that the executive committee had completed their arrangements for a series of entertainments, to be held at the Capitol, commencing November 30, with "Penelope; or, the Milkmaid's Bride," and the comic opera of "Box and Cox."

The infantry have secured the Arsenal range for their target practice on Thanksgiving Day.

The first prize to be shot for will be the corps badge, now worn by Private W. L. Cash. The second prize will be the Fisher rifle, to be shot for by non-commissioned officers. This prize is now held by Private Hale, but on this occasion the rifleman who wins the rifle will be entitled to wear the gold medal presented by the non-commissioned officers.

The Grand Marshal (rain or shine), valued at $100, will be shot for on this occasion by all the members of the corps. It will become the individual property of the member making the best score.

Mr. George Seuffer, one of the honorary members, has presented a gold badge to be shot for annually by the commissioned officers, and on Thanksgiving Day it will be contested for the first time.

Report of the Supervising Architect. Supervising Architect Hill submitted his annual report to the Secretary of the Treasury to-day, showing the progress of the various works under his supervision during the year.

The amount expended on repairs and improvements to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing was $15,000, and the amount on the Treasury building, $47,000.

The total cost for heating, hoisting and ventilating apparatus, $25,288.94; for vaults, safes and locks, $39,302.48; for plans, $128.17; for storage of silver dollars, $19,792.35.

The activity in the building business has resulted in less active competition for Government work. Prices have ranged higher than last year, and difficulty has been met in securing prompt delivery of iron work, and in every instance where rolled shapes have formed any part of the work, contractors are in default as to time.

If You Want substantial boys' clothing, go to Eisenman Bros., corner Seventh and E.

An Assault Case. John O'Brien was up before Judge Snell this morning on the charge of assaulting George Brown, a frail little boy, about 7 or 8 years old. The alleged assault took place at the residence of Dr. H. Hopkins, in the West End. Bettie Davis, the daughter of the child and a housekeeper for the Doctor, testified that O'Brien came to the house last Sunday, and because the child laughed at him, he assaulted him and kicked the little fellow down stairs. The defendant stated that he went to see his friend Dr. Hopkins, who is now lying at the point of death, and that he suggested that a minister be sent for to administer spiritual consolation. At this he boy made fun, and he simply pushed him aside. He further said that the Davis woman refuses to allow any one to see Dr. Hopkins unless she is in the room with him, and that he will advise with him with reference to the disposition of his property. The Court heard the evidence, and fined the defendant $1 and costs.

DOCTORS' OPINIONS.

Its precepts are of no uncertain tone. Certainly the President did not die from any Lack of Positive Principles.

applicable to his case. If there were no rules to suit such a wound as that of the President, the science of surgery would be a fraud and the surgeons who through past ages down to the present time have become eminent in their calling, would have become unworthy of that debt which Lord Bacon declares every man owes to his profession. There are, however, explicit rules for the management of every possible wound or injury.

Were these rules heeded in the present instance? The question brings us to the third and last division of the subject. Third. The surgeons in attendance and in consultation on the case are charged with certain neglects and mistakes by reason of which the President died.

While not prepared to assert in the light of all the facts as revealed by the post-mortem examination that this charge can be sustained in its entirety, I believe that the following alleged circumstances are true. If they are, then in so far as they are contrary to sound surgery were the chances of President Garfield's recovery lessened.

The above was all that was received up to the hour of going to press.

A Handsome Gift Worthily Bestowed.

The plate printers of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing are very naturally very proud of their fellow-workman, Mr. William McKim.

Mr. McKim is not only a good workman, but is otherwise popular, and excels in aquatic sports. He is a member of the Potomac Boat Club, and it will be remembered that the late single-oar race he carried off the championship badge. His fellow workmen were delighted, and when Mr. McKim went to his work the next morning, he was surprised to see his press handsomely decorated with miniature flags. But they determined that he should have a more substantial testimonial of their appreciation, and as these "hard-fisted sons of toil" never do anything in a half-way manner, they decided to make a present which would be a life-long souvenir. Consequently a committee, consisting of Messrs. Arthur Small, John Wood, Cornelius Patton, Francis J. Grimes, Richard Somes and William Beal, was formed, by whom a watch and chain were selected as a testimonial.

Last night, after the Plate Printers' Union had met their meeting, the watch, which bore the inscription "Presented to W. C. McKim, by the Plate Printers of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, November 14, 1881," was presented by Mr. George Omerly in a neat and eloquent speech on behalf of the donors. Mr. McKim responded in a very happy manner and the pleasant scene ended, the plate printers well satisfied that the gift had been worthily bestowed, and the recipient truly grateful that he had merited the approbation and esteem of the gentlemen who were his daily associates and who knew him best.

The Races To-day.

The track at Ivy City to-day was in splendid condition, but the attendance was small, there being about 800 present. Thirteen horses entered for the first dash for a mile.

The first dash was delayed by several false starts. At the fourth start Captain and Icarus and threw his jockey, a small boy, and trod on him, injuring him seriously.

He was carried off the track, crying in pain, to the club-house. Capias ran around the course unmounted and stopped near the judges' stand, and the race was delayed by the accident for the quarter of an hour.

In the mile dash, first race, Gov. Sprague was the favorite. He was beaten by Ike Bonham, Tom Hunter second, and Ingomar third; time, 1:45.
